Blessed Are the Righteous in a Collapsing Age | Isaiah 3:10

"Tell the righteous it will be well with them, for they will enjoy the fruit of their deeds."

GRACE MINISTRIES INTERNATIONAL

1. Welcome

How is the weather in your heart these days?

What blessing from Grace Time stood out to you most this past week?

2. Sermon Summary

In Isaiah's day, Judah was falling apart. Its leaders were failing, and it was as though children were ruling over the people. Even as God's judgment brought severe hardship, He declared, "Tell the righteous it will be well with them." Today, we too are living in uncertain and turbulent times. Why, then, can the righteous still experience God's blessing even when society is falling apart?

1. In a collapsing age, God (distinguishes) the righteous.

(Isa. 3:10-11) "Tell the righteous it will be well with them…"

Right after this promise comes "Woe to the wicked!" (v. 11). The world says, "Everyone goes down the same," but God clearly distinguishes the righteous from the wicked (Mal. 3:18). The God who kept Lot in Sodom, Goshen in Egypt, and Daniel in Babylon sees the one who fears Him even in a falling city. The shaking of the world does not define who we are.

2. The righteous (rely) on God Himself, not His gifts.

(Ps. 27:8) "…Your face, LORD, I will seek."

The people of Judah had come to depend on the provisions and security God gave them rather than on God Himself (Isa 3:1). But David, even in the midst of trouble, sought God's presence rather than simply looking for a way out (Ps 27:8). Those who live only for God's gifts may lose their footing when those gifts are taken away. But those who treasure God Himself can remain steadfast even when everything else is gone (Hab 3:17–18).

3. The righteous eat the (reap) of their obedience.

(Gal. 6:9) "…we will reap a harvest if we do not give up."

God has not left us guessing about how He wants us to live. Through His Word, He has already shown us what is good: "To act justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with your God" (Mic 6:8). Our daily choices to act with integrity, show love, and serve others may not produce immediate results. Yet, in God's time, these acts of obedience bear fruit in our families and in the lives of future generations.

Judah fell, but God's promise stood firm. When we seek God Himself and walk in daily obedience, we can stand firm like a tree planted by streams of water (Psalm 1:3). Let us encourage one another with these words: "You are blessed!"

3. Discussion

1) Isaiah 3:10 says, "Tell the righteous it will be well with them." In a world where so much feels uncertain, what does it look like to live as a righteous person today

2) Have you ever gone through a difficult season when you discovered that God Himself was more precious to you than His blessings? How has that experience strengthened your faith?

3) What is one small step of obedience you can take this week, at home or at work, to sow a seed of righteousness? As you share, encourage one another by saying, "You are blessed!"

Prayer Together

Even in a collapsing age, we trust You, Lord, who set us apart as the righteous. Help us seek Your face and become a house church that bears the fruit of righteousness through daily obedience.
